Leavitt Howg. ile council was gling with how to ed, Brewin suggest- ng the topic to next annual gener- eting, which would lace early next year. Seeing as the bylaw would have an effect on a variety of M.D. resi- dence, council agreed they should hear out their ratepayers on how they feel they should proceed.

"I would like some public consultation on this, I think it's an important element that we're missing," said Coun. John Turcato.

A motion was made to bring the topic to the next M.D. annual gener- al meeting with amend- ments and was passed unanimously.
